

The Nebraska State Patrol (NSP) is reminding all motorists to "Be Here for the Holidays," by promoting voluntary compliance with all traffic safety laws, in an effort to reduce fatalities during the holiday season.

"Be Here for the Holidays," is a special traffic safety initiative which includes the posting of times and locations of selected NSP traffic enforcement efforts across the state of Nebraska. Drivers can access the calendar from the NSP web site at www.nsp.state.ne.us

"Many of us travel to be with family or friends during the holiday season," said Field Services Commander, Major Russ Stanczyk. "We hope by drawing attention to enforcement efforts, travelers will choose to voluntarily comply with the traffic safety laws and avoid crash-causing behaviors such as driving impaired."

A monthly calendar can be found in the Quick Links box on the NSP website under NSP Enforcement Activities.

The link takes visitors to a monthly calendar, with each day listing the type of enforcement planned and the location of the special enforcement.

Major Stanczyk said, "It is the goal of the Traffic Services Division to hold at least one traffic safety enforcement operation somewhere in the state daily."
