

Syngenta proudly announces that it is partnering with Chad Rosentrater in Elsie, to deliver seed solutions to growers that include high-yielding Garst® brand corn and NK® brand soybeans, as well as innovative trait technologies like the Agrisure® family of traits and proprietary seed treatments.

“Independent seed dealers have access to our complete portfolio of products and grower solutions,” said Adam Wollenburg, account development Representative, Syngenta. “With game-changing technologies and a dedicated support team, Chad will work with growers to reach new levels of crop productivity.”

With an 18-year background in agronomy and seven years of experience as a Pioneer seed salesman, Rosentrater will be able to offer unique solutions for each grower’s fields, said Wollenburg. He will be able to offer high-producing hybrids and varieties that have proven to deliver top yields, and meet the needs of growers and the changing ways they produce crops, he added.

Wollenburg said Rosentrater is committed to providing growers with the right product for their fields, and ultimately helping them reach the highest level of productivity.