

The sale of general admission (GA) seat tickets for the 2012 NCAA® Division I Men's College World Series® (CWS) began on April 14. GA tickets, costing $80 per book of 10 tickets, are available through NCAA.com/CWS, from area service clubs, at all Hy-Vee supermarket customer service counters, as well as the CenturyLink Center Omaha box office and other locations throughout the metro Omaha area.

GA tickets are for non-guaranteed seats in the right outfield and left outfield bleachers. The bleachers will hold approximately 5,500 fans. GA tickets are good throughout the series, including finals games.

Admissions will be restricted once the GA section is filled to capacity, although fans will still be allowed through the gate intermittently to fill unused GA seats or as people leave the stadium.

Based on the availability of reserved seats during games, GA tickets may be upgraded to the reserved section at the TD Ameritrade Park Omaha box office on the day of the game. A limit of four GA may be upgraded to reserved seat tickets for any single game. To upgrade a GA ticket to reserved ticket, the purchaser must pay the difference between the individual GA ticket price and the reserved seat ticket price.