

Have you ever wanted an easy-to-use gardening resource that gives gardeners hints and timelines to carry out different work in the yard or landscape? That resource has now arrived!

University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension Master Gardeners from the North Platte area have created a gardening calendar that provides non-biased gardening suggestions to address the growing seasons and conditions for west central Nebraska.

Simple tips and suggestions are offered throughout the calendar covering lawns, vegetable gardens, flower beds, trees, landscapes, garden safety, diseases, insects, indoor plants, and other miscellaneous horticulture topics to help remind gardeners about timing, applications, and ideas to improve the home garden and landscape.

Copies of this calendar are $5 each at the UNL Lincoln-McPherson County Extension Office, 348 W. State Farm Road, in North Platte. Calendars can be mailed directly to individuals for $8 each as well. Contact the UNL Lincoln-McPherson County Extension Office by calling (308) 532-2683, or by sending an e-mail message to Lincoln-County@unl.edu to place an order.
