

The youngest in attendance at a Perkins County High School cheer clinic on Saturday was enthusiastic Anley Sauder, three, daughter of Melissa and Chase Sauder. Forty-four Plainsmen cheerleader wannabes were led by the current high school cheerleaders, Rachel Patrick, Lacey Jensen, Jessie Woodmancy, Courtney McClenahan, Alyssa Young, Kayla Woodmancy, Mariah Curtis, Samantha Snogren, and cheerleader coaches Ashleigh Noyes, and Lauren Klima. After spending the morning learning chants and cheers followed by a pizza lunch, the three squads which were divided by age gave an afternoon performance for parents, grandparents and fans. Participants received pompons and satchels while a lucky winner from each age group was selected for the “spirit jar” award. See group photo in "Sports." (Photo by Jan Rahn)
