

The artistic talents of high school students will be showcased at Nebraska Wesleyan's fourth annual juried art exhibition "Bridge."

Nebraska Wesleyan's Department of Art will host Bridge Jan. 17-27. High school seniors were invited to submit artwork to be considered for the exhibition. Sixteen students from Nebraska, South Dakota, and Texas were selected for the exhibit.

Perkins County High School students selected for the exhibit include Jessyca Briggs, Shania Metcalf, Rachel Patrick and Jessie Woodmancy.

On Sunday, Jan. 27, a "best of show" entry will be awarded along with two $10,000 talent scholarships to study art at NWU.

The exhibit features a variety of mediums including photography, painting, drawing, ceramics, and more.

The exhibit is free and open to the public. Gallery hours are Tuesday-Friday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Saturday-Sunday, 1 to 4 p.m. Elder Gallery is located in the Rogers Center for Fine Arts, 50th Street and Huntington Ave.
