

Chance Kennicutt and Emma Franklin, who will be juniors, were selected to represent Wallace High School at the 2013 Nebraska Leadership Seminar at Doane College June 6 – 9, 2013.

“Nearly 150 students from across Nebraska attended the 2013 Nebraska Leadership Seminar,” said Dylan Schenk, Corporate Board President of NLS. “Each of these students have been given the tools to become the leader their community needs—a leader who is inspiring, challenges the norm, and empowers others to discover their strengths.”

Nebraska Leadership Seminar, Inc., (NLS) is a statewide leadership organization that teaches students to lead with their strengths through the nonprofit’s relationship with the Gallup Organization. Each summer, the organization hosts a four-day seminar for high school sophomores from around the state to challenge, empower and inspire them to become the leaders Nebraska needs. Since its founding in 1978, more than 6,000 students from 300 school districts have successfully completed the seminar.
